

What is Kundera's claim?

- a. We act differently in private than we do in public.
 - b. Acting differently in private than in public is the basis of individual life.
 - c. We must defend the value of private life above all other values
 - d. Respecting the difference between public and private life is essential to freedom.
 - e. Anyone who invades private life is a criminal.
-

1. 5 minutes: discuss the question in your group and come up with a response.
2. 15 minutes: read the three sample pieces and rank them, best to worst. Then, assign a grade based on the 0-9 scale and the scoring guideline provided.
3. Remaining time: Read 3 peers' essays. Evaluate them using the same criteria.